Dear Colleague, .....

Like you, I've enjoyed identifying and supporting start-ups using digital tools and technology to improve BOTH people's health AND our inefficient health care system. In recent years, I've joined you in backing exciting companies with hopeful stories.

Now, we're an industry in transition. Our seeds have taken root and we're all beginning to realize real gains from the hard work of entrepreneurs, healthcare executives and, yes, investors.

We're seeing many signs of progress including:

Financial returns – Not only are digital health companies finding ways to the public markets, they're using that capital to acquire our smaller companies and building meaningful businesses.

New players – Pharma is now fully in the game, finding able partners and acquisition targets among digital health and data players. We'll analyze some of the more recent deals and help you anticipate what we'll see next. Everything's at play – health insurance is being disrupted and self-insured employers are adopting digital health tools to control their spend through more efficient care.

Real Adoption – We'll hear from providers about how digital technology is delivering value to their systems and payers who will explain what they will and won't be paying for.

Consumers – With deductibles and co-pays at an all-time high, people are taking control of their healthcare and we're seeing the emergence of true consumer-driven use of more than just apps – complete programs for both preventive and curative health.

On December 10, I hope you'll join us at the Digital Healthcare Innovation Summit to meet the people who worked beside you to build successful stories. Thanks to the hard work of our co-chairs and advisory board, we'll hear directly from pharma executives, hospital leaders, investors, payers and other critical players.

No doubt, 2020 promises to be a pivotal year for this revolution we helped start. Don't finish this year without knowing what's coming.

Warm Regards,
